Projects are built around motivated Individuals

Simplicity

Self-Organizing Teams

Regular Adaption to changing circumstances

Dear Professional

Shrinking Budgets? Competing Priorities? Schedule Risk? It's easy in a turbulent time to keep your head down and hope things get better.

But how about seeing things differently and embracing this as a great time to look at how Agile software development techniques and the tools that support them can help you reduce risk, boost productivity and cut development costs.

Effective teams rely on personal and interpersonal effectiveness, in this seminar we'll discover how to develop the skills you need to succeed and lead a self-organizing team.

Attend Agile Seminar to evaluate your next step and discuss best practices with Industry Experts.

Book before 30th June 2010 and get
$100 off the standard registration price

I look forward to meeting you at the Agile Seminar in July.

Best Regards
